Connecting Insights, Transforming Lives: A Global Vision for Autism Innovation

Chris Abildgaard, Ed.D., L.P.C., N.C.S.P., N.C.C.

Dear GARIS 2027 Participants,

Welcome to GARIS 2027. Over the next two days, we come together as a global community to advance autism research and innovation and to turn learning into meaningful action.

Our summit brings together scientific evidence, professional expertise, family perspectives, and lived experience. Each offers essential insights, and together, they guide us toward more inclusive, effective, and compassionate solutions.

We challenge assumptions and imagine what is possible. From inclusive education and mental health to technology, transition to adulthood, workplace inclusion, family engagement, and self-advocacy, our focus is on building supports that honor neurodiversity and promote opportunity at every stage of life.

This work depends on trust—trust between researchers and communities, trust across disciplines, and trust in the voices of those with lived experience. When we lead with respect and partnership, we create environments where everyone belongs and no one is left behind.

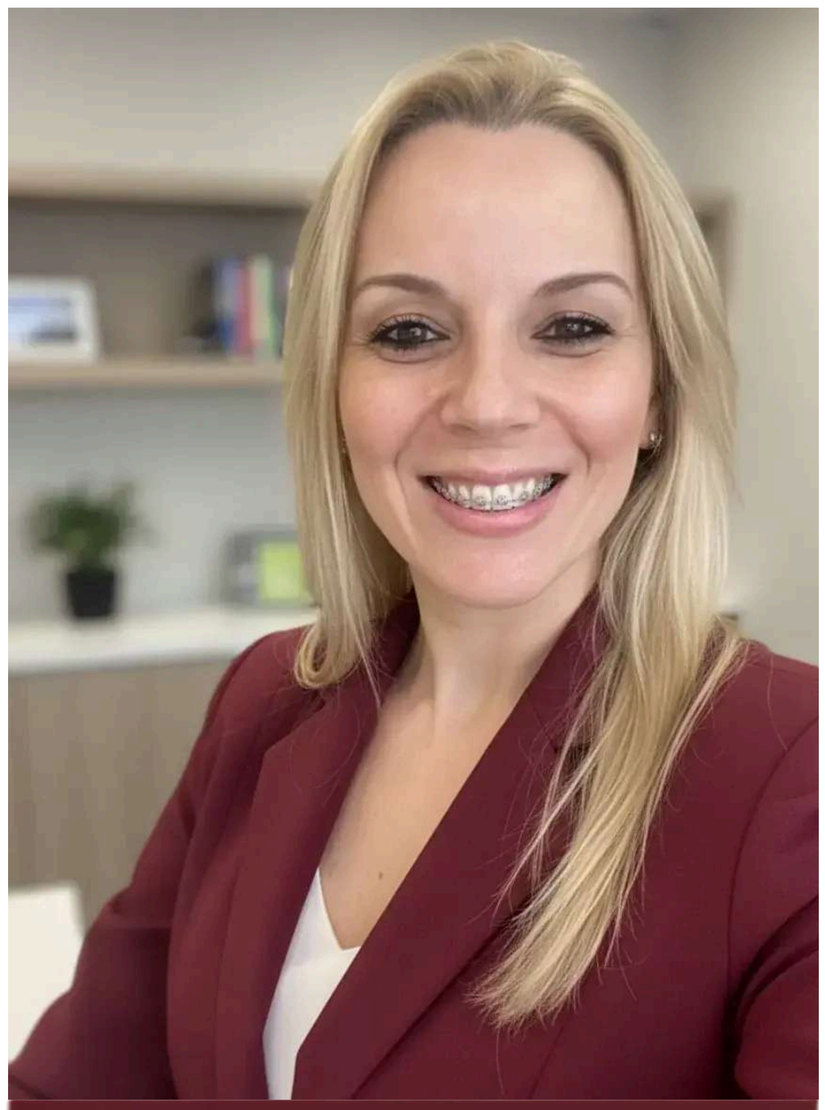

As you engage in sessions and connections, I invite you to listen deeply, ask bold questions, and build bridges. Let us leave inspired, aligned, and committed to turning ideas into actions that improve lives.

> “The true measure of a conference is not only what happens during these two days. It is what participants carry forward.”

Warm regards,
Chris Abildgaard, Ed.D., L.P.C., N.C.S.P., N.C.C
